

Overview

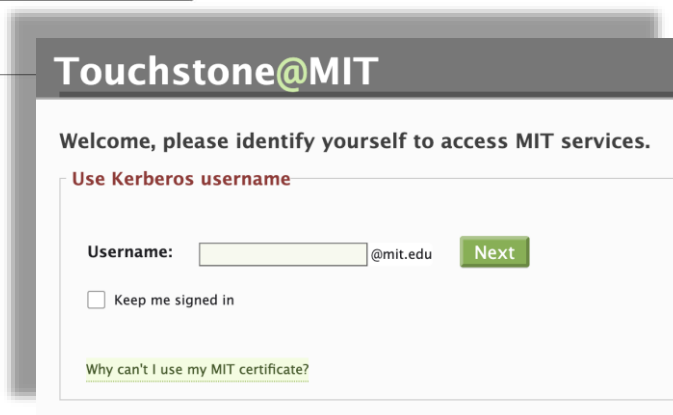

NCBI SciENcv allows users to log in via authentication on external systems, such as eRA Commons or Research.gov, and MIT Touchstone.

Log In via MIT Touchstone

1. Go to SciENcv and click the More Options button. On the next window, click the more login options button to view all log in options.

2. In the Find your login provider search box, begin typing Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
3. Click the Massachusetts Institute of Technology link in the results screen and you will be directed to authenticate MIT Touchstone by entering your Kerberos username and password.

4. You will be given the option to create a My NCBI account or link to an existing My NCBI account:

If you do not already have a NCBI account, select Create a new NCBI account and click Continue.

The screenshot shows the NCBI login page with the heading "Signed in to NCBI via a Partner Organization". It displays a congratulatory message and two options: "Create a new NCBI account" (selected with a radio button) and "Link to an existing NCBI account". A red arrow points to the "Continue" button at the bottom.

If you have an NCBI account, select Link to an existing NCBI account and click Continue.

The screenshot shows the NCBI login page with the heading "Signed in to NCBI via a Partner Organization". It displays a congratulatory message and two options: "Create a new NCBI account" and "Link to an existing NCBI account" (selected with a radio button). Below the options are input fields for "NCBI Username:" and "NCBI Password:", and a "Continue" button at the bottom. A red arrow points to the "Continue" button.

5. You will be redirected to the My NCBI home page where you can access and manage tools within the NCBI (National Center for Biotechnology Information) interface.

The screenshot shows the "My NCBI" home page with various sections: "Search NCBI databases", "My Bibliography", "Recent Activity", "Saved Searches", "Collections", "Filters", and "SciENcv". A red circle highlights the "SciENcv" section, and a red arrow points to it from a red speech bubble.

Reorder the sections by selecting and moving

Getting Help

For questions regarding SciENcv, email the RA Support at ra-help@mit.edu.